

WILLINGNESS TO LEARN FROM OUR FAMILY:

Have you ever heard the saying, 'Learn something new every day!'? Well, it's true! Our family can teach us really important stuff every single day.

We can learn good habits by watching how our friends behave nicely. And when our friends don't act so great, we can learn what not to do. If a friend wants us to do something we know is wrong, we should be brave and say, 'No! That's not right. I know better!'

Learning is happening all around us, all the time! To do well in the world, we need to keep our minds open and be ready to learn from everyone around us. That means listening carefully to our teachers, coaches, and especially our parents. Even people we don't expect can teach us important things!

When we're excited to learn new stuff, we become even better at learning. And when we really pay attention in class and try our best, we show how eager we are to learn. So let's keep our minds open, have a positive attitude, and always be ready to learn something new!
